contemporary art and the culture of speed how have artists responded to our market driven tech enabled culture of speed viewing velocities explores a contemporary art scene caught in the gears of 24 7 capitalism it looks at artists who embrace the high octane experience economy and others who are closer to the slow movement some of the most compelling artworks addressing the cadences of contemporary work and leisure play on distinct even contradictory conceptions of time from danh vo s relics to moyra davey s photographs of dust covered belongings from roman ondak s queuing performers and susan hiller s outdoor sleepers to maria eichhorn s art strike and ruth ewan s giant reconstruction of the french revolutionary calendar artists have drawn out aspects of the present temporal order that are familiar to the point of near invisibility while outlining other more liberating ways of conceiving organising and experiencing time marcus verhagen builds on the work of theorists jonathan crary hartmut rosa and jacques ranci  re to trace lines of insurgent art that recast struggles over time and history in novel and revealing terms contemporary art can seem chaotic it may be made of toilet paper or candies you can eat or meat that is thrown out after each exhibition some works fill a room with obsessively fabricated objects while others purport to include only concepts thoughts or language i argue through many examples that disparate developments in installation art conceptual art time based media art and participatory art can be understood in terms of custom rules many artists articulate custom rules governing artwork display preservation of material elements and interactivity or audience participation rules are established through the artist s sanction the creative act of designating the material elements and rules that constitute the work s structure rules serve as medium they are part of the work s structure and help to constitute its meanings rules are meaningful in themselves and they help to activate the expressive potential of material objects museum practice should include providing information about the rules otherwise audiences can t fully appreciate the work contemporary art conservation involves preserving information loss of information about the rules like loss of a chunk of marble can seriously damage the work rules are trickier to pin down than material objects and are subject to violation so we'll examine the effects on the work's integrity and authenticity when things go wrong in various ways is the emergence of custom rules a positive development some artists have used rules to powerful effect but rules aren't always used well bad art can take any form publisher's description in 2013 Georg Baselitz declared that women don't paint very well whilst shocking his comments reveal what Helen Gorrill argues is prolific discrimination in the artworld in a groundbreaking study of gender and value Gorrill proves that there are few aesthetic differences in men and women's painting but that men's art is valued at up to 80 per cent more than women's indeed the power of masculinity is such that when men sign their work it goes up in value yet when women sign their work it goes down museums the author attests are also complicit in this vicious cycle as they collect tokenist female artwork which impinges upon its artists market value an essential text for students and teachers Gorrill's book is provocative and challenges existing methodologies whilst introducing shocking evidence she proves how the price of being a woman impacts upon all forms of artistic currency be it social cultural or economic and in the vanguard of the me too movement calls for the artworld to take action who gets to say what counts as contemporary art artists critics curators gallerists auctioneers collectors or the public revealing how all of these groups have shaped today's multifaceted definition Terry Smith brilliantly shows that an historical approach offers the best answer to the question what is contemporary art Smith argues that the most recognizable kind is characterized by a return to mainstream modernism in the work of such artists as Richard Serra and Gerhard Richter as well as the retro sensationalism of figures like Damien Hirst and Takashi Murakami at the same time Smith reveals postcolonial artists are engaged in a different kind of practice one that builds on local concerns and tackles questions of identity history and globalization a younger generation embodies yet a third approach to contemporaneity by investigating time place mediation and ethics through small scale closely connective art making inviting readers into these diverse yet overlapping art worlds Smith offers a behind the scenes introduction to the institutions the personalities the biennials and of course the works that together are defining the contemporary the resulting map of where art is now illuminates not only where it has been but also where it is going in 2009 the Singapore art museum SAM began its transformation into a museum of contemporary art it has since amassed one of the most definitive public collections of contemporary Southeast Asian art and this guide to its contemporary collection presents a snapshot of current artistic production in the most dynamic of regions with its heady fusion of stylistic beauty and urgent social commentary spanning the
